EXPLANATORY NOTE

(This note is not part of the Instrument and does not purport to be a legal interpretation.)

These Regulations amend article 43 of the Social Welfare (Consolidated Occupational Injuries) Regulations 2007 to 2024, which, in paragraph (d), relates to the prescribed time for making a claim in the case of death benefit.

This arises in the context of the enactment of the Social Welfare (Bereaved Partner's Pension and Miscellaneous Provisions) Act 2025. Part 2 of that Act amends the Social Welfare Consolidation Act 2005 to provide for the expansion of the eligibility for the Widow's, Widower's and Surviving Civil Partner's Contributory Pension to include certain surviving qualified cohabitants. It also provides that eligibility criteria based on being a qualified cohabitant applies to a small number of other schemes, including death benefit under section 81 of the Social Welfare Consolidation Act 2005.

In line with the other schemes affected, these Regulations provide for a once-off provision that allows for surviving qualified cohabitants to be paid death benefit from 22 January 2024, in the case of deaths that occurred before that date, or from the date of death for any death that occurred on or after that date, provided the claim is made within six months of enactment. In all other cases the prescribed time for making a claim remains at three months.
